Press Ignored by Lawyers? This Is a Time for Compromise

You read on this page yesterday a Little Rock dispatch reporting that Sigma Delta Chi, the professional fraternity of newspaper men and women, has decided to hire an attorney and fight the proposal now before the Arkansas Supreme Court to change the rules of criminal procedure.

The AP dispatch said:

"The Arkansas Bar Association proposed the rules to the court in a petition. The rules would restrict pre-trial publicity in criminal cases and would prohibit court officials from discussing pending cases."

But John Reeder, news director of KARK-TV and president of the Little Rock chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, said, in the words of the dispatch, "It was important for the court to know that the news media do not agree on these rules as the bar association petition indicates."

As a working newspaper editor and a member of Sigma Delta Chi I support its position against the Arkansas Bar Association's petition. I do so without having read the lawyers' petition and without having consulted either the Sigma Delta Chi officers or any other newspaper man. No apology is necessary. A newspaper man need not apologize for upholding the views of his professional organization any more than a lawyer is to be criticized for backing the professional group to which he belongs.

Frankly, neither lawyers nor newspapermen are to be trusted to revise court procedure to suit their profession alone.

Some newspapers have handled court matters in a sensational fashion strictly to serve their circulation departments—obviously with the help of lawyers all too willing to "try their case in the papers."

But this is not the general rule of conduct for conscientious editors and conscientious lawyers.

As Americans we were brought up to believe that every accused person is entitled to a fair trial. Newspaper abuses should be curbed. But so should unscrupulous lawyers.

Exclusion of the press from the formulating of new criminal procedure smells of secrecy—which could possibly lead to more miscarriages of justice than today's procedure with all its faults.

Certainly this is a time when both sides should be heard—the press as well as the attorneys—and a compromise worked out.

AM&N Head to Quit With UA Merger

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Dr. Lawrence A. Davis has thrown in the towel.

He told a student assembly at Arkansas AM&N here Monday that he would resign as president of the college when it merges with the University of Arkansas in July.

Davis has been associated with the predominantly black college for 29 years.

Davis predicted that once the U of A gains control of the school, the entire character of the school will be changed. He said that within five years it will move from a school designed to give poor blacks and education to a predominantly white school.

"The examples of this evolution are all around to be seen," Davis said. "Brothers and sisters, this is the way it's going to be."

He said as a result of the merger he said black students would find it financially impossible to attend the college.

"If you don't have the dough, baby, you won't go," Davis said.

He told the students that after the merger, "the academic regulations, requirements and procedures are going to be weighed against black students."

"For whatever it is worth, because of the circumstances under which it had to be done, the consequences."

to come in the lives of black people, which I believe to be inevitable, and the fact that the basic problems and needs of achieving a system of quality higher education in Arkansas, not only are not being attacked nor dealt with and will not be aided by the merger of AM&N College with the University of Arkansas, in my conscience, in my heart, and in my intellect, I oppose the merger," Davis said.

He said his plan not to serve as chancellor would be no "particular loss because there are competent, anxious people who would be glad to do so."

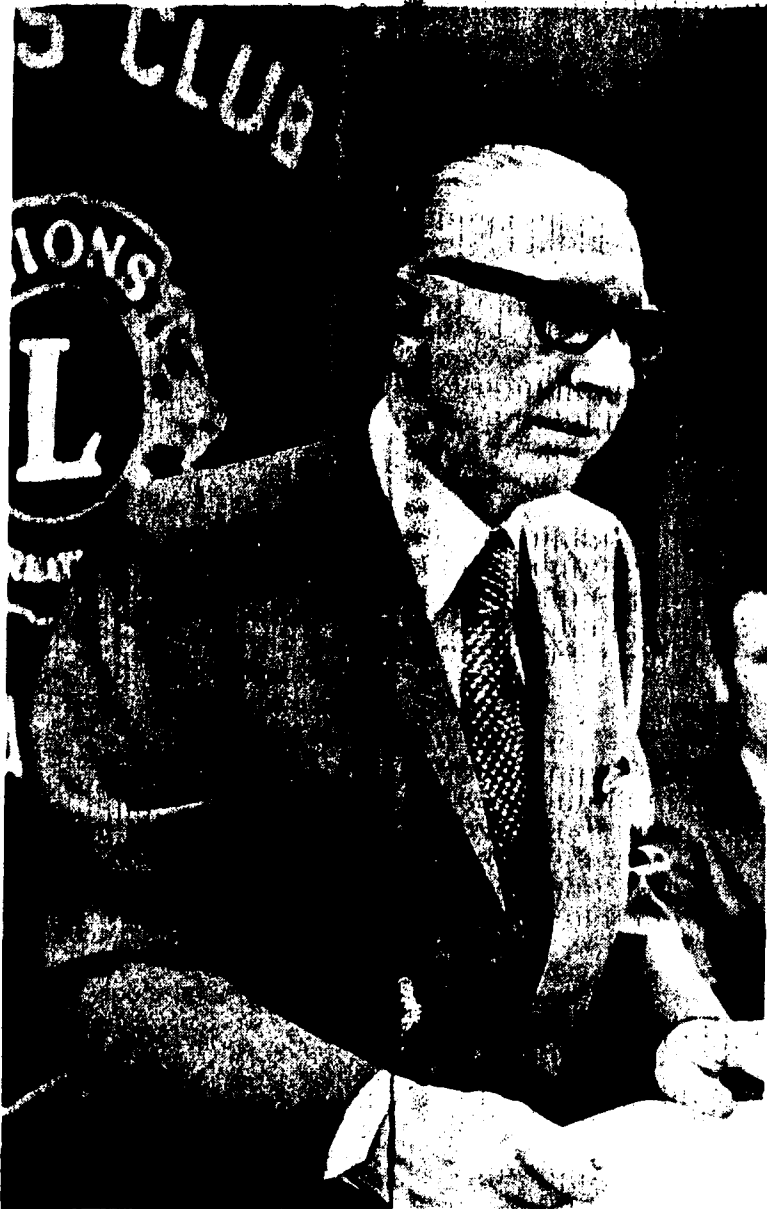

"I am not a segregationist, I am for integration, but not the kind that disregards the competence and dignity of black people and that supports subtle concepts and commitments to white superiority," Davis said.

Davis said due to the college's financial condition, it was forced to accept the merger. Due to $1.3 million debt the state Administration Department has been managing the financial matters of the school.

"I think it must be clear to you now," Davis told the students, "I don't expect to remain at AM&N College much longer, merger or no merger. My days of usefulness here have ended."

Davis said there is low morale at the school.

KELLY BRYANT

Arkansas Secretary of State, Kelly Bryant spoke to the Hope Lions during their weekly luncheon Monday at the Town and Country. A Hope resident, Mr. Bryant was warmly welcomed when presented to the club by program chairman Calvin Smith.

The speaker said that Hope had always been well known over the state and years ago at the time of Hope's first census was considered a major town. In recent months, however, Hope's image has grown remarkably he said. The surge of building and industrial expansion is being noticed and commented on statewide.

To bolster this feeling of enthusiasm and progress Mr. Bryant outlined the possibility of real recognition that could result from the handling and promotion of a Hope Centennial. He then gave three dates in 1975; February 20th, March 25th, and April 4th on which different petitions and papers were filed regarding the organization of the town of Hope, Arkansas.

Hope's first census was conducted by B.P. Haynes and Charles Hervey in 1908. At that time the population was 3407 of which 1282 were black and 2145 would request an extension. Ford Motor Co., meanwhile, said it is still years from production on an engine promoted by President Nixon as one which can meet the impending standards. Jack Collins, project director for Ford's programmed combustion—or Proco—engine, said "it certainly will be past 1978" before the engine is ready.

The registered bonds would be difficult to sell, since they are made out to a person, but the notes are "bearer" bonds that can be cashed by whoever has them, the detectives said.

Bull Performance Tests Here Friday

Friday, January 14, from 10:00 A.M. to 12:30 Noon at the Bull Barn on the Spencer Tract the Southwest Branch Experiment Station will be host to fifteen producers with bulls on test and guests interested in Beef Cattle Production according to Cecil M. Bittle, Assistant Director in Charge.

There will be a discussion on each of the 39 bulls that finished the test giving the good and not so good points on each bull. This will give the visitors an opportunity to see what the professional people use as a guide in evaluating a bull for breeding purposes. The results of the test will be presented along with the cost and comparison with previous tests.

Many of the bulls will be for sale by private treaty. Each producer will be introduced and given an opportunity to tell the group about his cattle including such things as type of cattle, whether or not any of his bulls are for sale, bulls at home for sale and any other pertinent information for the prospective buyers.

Nominations will be taken for next year's test. It is urged that those interested in testing nominate their bulls at this time especially since the Station has only forty stalls and last year there were over seventy requests for testing.

Going Right to Public

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Declaring his freedom from the burdens he carried in his last bid for the presidency, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey has launched his campaign in the first of several state primaries that he hopes will finally lead him to the White House.

"I am prepared to take this campaign directly to the people, carrying no one else's burdens," the Minnesota Democrat said Monday in Tallahassee, Fla., as he began campaigning in Florida's March 14 presidential primary.

"The people of this state will be the first to judge my fitness for the high office that I seek," said the 60-year-old senator who, while vice president in the Lyndon B. Johnson administration, lost the presidency to Richard M. Nixon four years ago.

Earlier in the day Humphrey was in Philadelphia where he entered the April 25 Pennsylvania primary. He will face an almost full field: Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Vance Hartke of Indiana, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, George McGovern of South Dakota, Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Muskie, making a campaign swing from Florida to Wisconsin, stopped in Springfield, Ill., where he picked up the formal endorsement of Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, son of the late two-time Democratic presidential candidate.

Humphrey told newsmen that as vice president he had carried "the good and the bad" of the Johnson administration. He was linked with President Johnson's Vietnam policies.

As he began his campaign for the coming election, however, Humphrey urged total U. S. withdrawal from South Vietnam.

Humphrey picked up endorsements from his fellow Minnesota senator, Walter F. Mondale, and from San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, who nominated Humphrey for president in 1968.

Meanwhile, McCarthy was in Chicago, where he claimed the best chance of defeating Nixon. The 1968 peace candidate said he will campaign "completely and intensely" in the March 21 Illinois primary.

Lindsay's campaign manager said in Boston the mayor would announce Thursday his entry in the April 25 Massachusetts primary.

Just remember that was not a battleground you heard late Monday in the Shover Street area. It was the first fight against the blackbird roost in the area and only firecrackers etc. were used, no guns. This will continue for at least two more nights or until the estimate 1½ million birds change their roosting spot.

Muslims Blamed for 4 Deaths in Baton Rouge

By TOM JORY

G. MICHAEL HARMON

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Mayor W. W. Dumas blames Black Muslims in part for a street gunfight between law enforcement officers and blacks which left four men dead. Seven young Muslims deny their organization was involved.

A spokesman for the NAACP says he isn't sure who was involved in shooting which erupted Monday after police moved in to clear a city street of an impromptu rally at which militants were calling for improved conditions in the city's black community.

Gov. John McKeithen blamed the burst of gunfire on a downtown street two miles from Louisiana's capitol on "outsiders."

And Sheriff's Detective Capt. Bryan Clemmons Jr. says "some sort of suicide plot" might have been involved in the shootout which took the lives of two deputies and two blacks.

Twenty blacks were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace after the afternoon shoot-out and eight of the 30 were later charged with murder in the deaths of the two deputies.

Some 25 persons were treated for injuries, including Baton Rouge Police Chief Eddie Bauer.

Four hundred National Guard troops were called to duty to bolster local and state police in enforcing a dusk to dawn curfew. Bars and grocery stores were ordered closed.

"We have every reason to believe this is a national movement by the Muslims," Dumas said. "The information we get is that this isn't just local."

McKeithen said the city was aware of what he called the outsiders.

Mayor Dumas called me Monday morning and warned me there could be trouble," McKeithen said, "but he thought they would come to City Hall and talk to him."

The seven young men who disclaimed Muslim involvement did so in a statement handed to newsmen after the shooting. They said they were members of the Black Muslim movement in Baton Rouge, but they were not identified. They said the blacks who fought with police apparently were renegades who called themselves Muslims.

Harvey Britton, field director of the Louisiana NAACP, said, "We don't know that there are Black Muslims involved. Or if it is an out-of-town or fractional group. We don't know if it was the Muslims or the NAACP or anyone else."

In speaking of a possible suicide plot, Clemmons said: "From what we get on the streets, they told people to bring your friends to a meeting Monday and they told them to tell a policeman and you'll see something you've never seen before. So we don't know."

The eight charged with murder were identified as Lawrence Brooks, 25, Baton Rouge; Raymond Eames, 21, Baton Rouge; Robert J. Barber, 20, Los Angeles; David McKinney, 22, Chicago; Toussaint L'Overture, 21, Chicago; Clendon Brown, 25, Chicago; Warren Hall, 25, Philadelphia; and Ridgley Williams Jr., who refused to give police his age or home town.

Cuban Plane Points Up Weak Spot in Defense

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators say failure of U.S. air defenses to spot a lumbering Cuban airliner before it landed at New Orleans last fall demonstrates an enemy attack could be launched from the south "with little risk of being detected in advance."

A report released today by the House Armed Services investigating subcommittee says U.S. authorities—despite three hours' notice—did not know the plane had penetrated American defenses until its pilot radioed for landing instructions.

The report calls the existing American air-defense system "virtually useless" and says a 1,500-mile gap between Florida and California is "virtually devoid of military surveillance and air-defense command and control."

"Since our potential enemies know of the gaping holes in our air defenses," said Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., "I think it is high time that the American people were let in on this open secret."

Hebert's subcommittee urged Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to speed up lagging development of a new air-defense system—and for now install a sophisticated, new, over-the-horizon radar to cover Cuba and the Gulf of Mexico.

Gen. Seth J. McKee, commander of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) estimated the interim southern coverage would cost $70 million to $125 million.

McKee testified NORAD did not know the Russian-built Cuban airliner headed toward New Orleans last Oct. 26 with 21 Cuban sugar conferees had penetrated U.S. defenses until it was informed the pilot had radioed the New Orleans tower for landing instructions 33 minutes earlier.

That report to NORAD was interrupted by the information that the Cuban plane was on the ground, McKee testified.

Hebert's subcommittee said Havana had messaged the Miami Air Traffic Control almost four hours earlier with a flight plan, and the information was relayed to a variety of points including NORAD, the State Department, the Federal Aviation Administration headquarters in Washington and the New Orleans control tower.

The subcommittee said the FAA urged the State Department to permit the plane's entry so as not to endanger release from Havana of a hijacked American Airlines 747 with 235 passengers.

It also said the State Department notified NORAD the Cuban plane probably would not make the flight because the Havana airport was closed for the arrival of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Schools at Richmond Must Merge

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the merger of the mostly black schools of Richmond with the predominantly white schools in two adjacent counties, holding that "if there is to be public education it must, under the Constitution, be afforded to all on an equal basis."

The 325-page decision issued Monday by U.S. District Court Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. was the first involving consolidation of schools of separate jurisdictions to accomplish school desegregation.

Merhige's ruling—to become effective next September—creates a 104,000-pupil metropolitan school division, including Richmond and two adjacent counties, Henrico to the north and Chesterfield to the south. It also calls for busing within the new district to achieve racial balance in schools.

An appeal is considered certain by the two counties, whose attorneys argued before Merhige last August that they were complying with constitutional requirements and were being called on to bail out Richmond from its urban problems.

Merhige held there was nothing to violate about the jurisdictional lines, since the cities and counties are creatures of the state and could have their lines altered or even be abolished by the state.

Wrist Cuts Are Fatal

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — Police said a Camden woman apparently bled to death on her front porch Monday after she apparently cut her wrists while attempting to get into her home through a window.

The victim, Mrs. Maudie F. Mitchell, 47, was found by a neighbor early Monday.

Police said a window screen on the side of the house had been taken off and the glass broken.

Israeli Hits Guerrillas in Lebanon

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli troops crossed the Lebanese border Monday night and attacked two villages in retaliation for a recent increase in attacks by Arab guerrillas from southern Lebanon.

The Israeli command said two Israeli soldiers and an undetermined number of Arab guerrillas were killed and one Israeli was wounded.

The Israelis said they blew up four buildings used as bases by the guerrillas.

It was the first raid into Lebanon that Israel has admitted since last Feb. 1. The guerrillas have accused the Israelis of making repeated attacks across the border.

The Israeli announcement said the attacks were made against terrorist bases in the villages of Bennt Jbail and Kfar Haman.

Bennt Jbail is 2 1/2 miles north of the border and about 17 miles east of the Mediterranean, while Kfar Haman is 3 miles north of the cease-fire line running along Mt. Hermon.

Experts Identify Basic Moon Blocks

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Lunar scientists have identified three basic building blocks of the moon and discovered a large region of relatively high radioactivity.

Experts reported Monday at the third annual Lunar Science Conference that study of data and rocks gathered on Apollo moon-landing flights disclose these three basic materials from which the moon is constructed:

—Iron-rich (basaltic) rock found in the great dry plains on the front side of the moon. Basalt also is a common material found on earth but its chemical composition differs from that on the moon.

—Kreep, the mysterious potassium-rich material returned by Apollo astronauts which also is high in such other radioactive elements as uranium, thorium and rare earth metals.

This is generally found in the radioactive northwest sector on the front side.

—Plagioclase found in most parts of the moon. It is low in radioactivity and high in aluminum, calcium and sodium.

"Now that we have identified these three basic building blocks, we must continue our studies to find how they are related in time and place," reported Dr. Paul W. Gast, chief of planetary and earth sciences at NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center.

Dr. James Arnold of the University of California at San Diego said the radioactive zone was detected by a gamma-ray experiment operated by astronaut Alfred M. Worden as he orbited the moon alone during the Apollo 15 mission last August.

"The radioactivity was detected over a wide area," Arnold said.

Arnold said research is under way to determine if the radioactivity is associated with thermal emissions from beneath the surface. He emphasized the dosage is high only in relation to the rest of the moon and that levels are similar to those on earth.

Gast said origin of the radioactive kreep rocks "is a crucial clue to the early history of the moon. It's important that we determine when they last crystallized from a liquid."

He said experts believe this occurred about four billion years ago, about the time the Mare Imbrium was carved out of the moon by the impact of a giant object from space. This would have been about 500,000 years after the time most lunar scientists believe the moon was created.

Test Tube Baby Days Closer

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The day appears to be nearing when scientists will announce either the implantation, or perhaps even the birth, of a "test tube baby."

Such a dramatic and controversial event would emphasize to the world the developing genetic and biologic revolution, with scientists working to bring man closer to new controls over human life.

And it could spur an international debate on control of the birth process.

A test tube baby would be conceived outside the human body—literally in the laboratory—with scientists fertilizing the woman's egg with the man's sperm in a test tube.

The fertilized egg would then grow and divide in the test tube until it developed sufficiently. Then it would be implanted in the woman's uterus to continue growing until a normal birth could take place.

The object is to help women have children despite a blockage of their fallopian tubes, through which the fertilized egg must normally pass.

Statements about plans to create a test tube baby have come recently from scientists in England, with similar work reported under way in Belgium and Japan.

In England, Dr. Douglas Bevis, a researcher at Jessop Hospital in Sheffield, said early in January he is ready to implant an artificially impregnated embryo in the womb of a volunteer.

"When I find her, I am in a position to go ahead," he told a British newspaper. "It could be as soon as next week or much longer."

Bevis said he would not announce the implantation.

Also in Britain, Dr. Robert G. Edwards of Cambridge University and Dr. P. C. Steptoe at General Hospital in Oldham said that last October they successfully took an egg from a woman, fertilized it in the laboratory with her husband's sperm and grew it until it was ready for implantation. But they did not take the final step.

This kind of research also could lead to determining the sex of the fetus in the test tube stage.

The complications that could develop seem vast. Would a woman hire another woman to carry a fetus created with her own egg and husband's sperm? Whose baby would the baby be?

On the beneficial side, this work might lead to the ability to correct genetic defects before implantation, thus eliminating some diseases.

Arkansans Involved

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — State police said one man was shot to death and another wounded early today in a rural area southeast of Roswell.

A man and a woman from Arkansas were arrested just outside Portales and charged with murder in connection with the shooting.

Police said the dead man was Bobby Lee Bickford, about 22, who apparently had arrived recently in Roswell.

The wounded man was identified as Larry Ewing, 22, of Cabot, Ark. He was treated at a Roswell hospital and released.

Those arrested were identified by Portales police as Patricia Ann Balding, 25, Benton, Ark., and Jerry Wayne Pemberton, 22, Rt. 2, Leachville, Ark. They were jailed in Portales.

State police said the shooting happened about four miles southeast of Roswell along the banks of the Hagerman Canal.

They said the wounded Ewing walked to the house of an unidentified farmer who took him to the hospital. He was admitted to the hospital at 2:55 a.m.

In Portales, Police Sgt. C. B. Curtis, acting on information from the State Police, spotted a car at the Portales city limits. He said he stopped the car and the woman and man in it both got out.

Curtis said he chatted with them for a time about Arkansas and then let them go. He said he then radioed for help and the pair was stopped and taken into custody a short distance away.

Best Cure for Sick Eagles Is Bird Talk

APOKA, Fla. (AP) — Doris Mager's best prescription for sick eagles is bird talk.

"You have to talk to them a lot," Mrs. Mager, a housewife, said Monday. "It helps to soothe and calm them down."

Mrs. Mager, who has played nurse to sick bald eagles for two years, has as her latest ward a bird named Hallie.

Hallie was grounded last week by a hunter's bullet which smashed into her wing and shattered the bone.

The bald eagle is being kept in a walk-in cage in Mrs. Mager's back yard.

"In two years I have nursed six bald eagles back to health," said Mrs. Mager. "The real thrill comes the day you open the cage door and they fly free."

Mrs. Mager says she feeds the eagles fish, mainly trout or mackerel.

"At the moment Hallie gets one big fish a day," she said. "I just put it in the cage and she eats it as she would in the wild."

"I try to have as little contact with the birds as possible," Mrs. Mager added. "I just talk to them when I go into the cage, but otherwise I try not to handle them because I want them to remain wild."

Mrs. Mager became interested in birds of prey when she went to work for the Audubon Society nine years ago.

Hallie was found on the banks of the upper St. Johns River and was taken to the society.

After her mate was discovered guarding eggs in a treetop eyrie, the society organized an airlift so the male eagle would not have to leave the nest for food.

But after a few days society members said the male bird apparently called in another female to share the egg-sitting chores and the airlift was canceled.

Hallie has had a steel pin inserted in her wing bone to hold it together. It is doubtful she will ever fly again.

Calls Rental Bees Insurance

GAY MILLS, Wis. (AP) — Rental bees are good insurance, says Bill Meyers of the Kickapoo Orchards, providing a backup to local bees in the job of pollinating the apple blossoms.

Timing is important, Meyers said. "If we get the bees too early, they send out their scouts and establish routes to other pollen," he said. "We wouldn't want that, so we get them when we have our own pollen."

Apples are not the only crop given the bees-ness. A state bee inspector says cucumbers and cranberries also get buzzed.

The muskrat is an excellent swimmer and can stay under water for about 12 minutes without coming up for air.

ASK AND YOU SHALL RECEIVE

Dear Readers:
Several weeks ago we asked our correspondents how they broke the nail biting habit (if they had indeed conquered it). You know, we think we're on to something good. At least a hundred people sent in success stories—and their suggestions may be just the thing to help some of you nipper out there. Before we publish the best answers let's start something going: a "How I Broke My Bad Habit" section in Generation Rap.

If you want help on conquering special nervous habits, write in, we'll publish your letters and ask for workable suggestions. Judging from the variety received on nail biting, we should round up some really great remedies. —HELEN AND SUE

Dear Sue And Helen:
I stopped biting my nails one at a time. That is, I'd bite every nail but one, which I let grow and it was really beautiful. When I saw how great my long nail looked, I cut down on another nail, and then another, until finally I wasn't biting at all. Now, I use lots of nail polish tastes terrible, and I'm real conscious of my friends' looks if my fingers creep up to my mouth. Their praise helped a lot, too. —NON NAIL NIPPER

Dear Helen And Sue:
I'm studying cosmetology and can tell you that one of the chief causes of nail biting is dryness. When the skin around the nail and the cuticle is dry and ragged, or you feel better when you put it in your mouth and it becomes moistened.

Buy a tube of cuticle oil and massage daily. Carry a little tube of hand lotion. Invest in a series of manicures if you can afford them. Good luck!

P.S. Average nail growth is 1/8 inch per month so don't expect instant success. —STUDENT

Dear RAP:
Plan a good hour of nail care once a week at least. Keep those ragged edges emery-boarded smooth. Follow all instructions for strong, supple nails. And remember—motivation is everything. If you really WANT nice nails, you can kick the habit. —DIANE

Dear RAP:
Whenever I got an urge to bite my nails, I'd stick a piece of gum in my mouth. Also, I'd cut my nails so short I couldn't bite them. Pretty soon—no more urge. —EX-BITER

Dear Sue:
I quit biting my nails because my boy friend said they looked ugly. —L.T.

Dear H And S:
My nails were down into the quick so I asked my girl friend to help. Every day she checks them out. If they show improvement, she'll hold my hand. Otherwise, no! —IT WORKS

Dear RAP:
Break old-fashioned toothpicks in half, tuck one such piece between thumb and forefinger as just a little protrudes, and bite this instead of your nails.

Switch to "Switchel" a tonic of hot water to which has been added equal parts of honey and vinegar, to taste. It helps the nerves, which are responsible for this kind of habit. —SIDNEY

Dear H And S:
That rotten tasting nail polish helps some kids, but it wouldn't do for guys, would it? Why not switch to a "rubbing rock" or something? When you've got something to do with your hands, they aren't in your mouth. —TIM

Dear RAP:
False fingernails will help nail biters, if they really want to quit. —SUBMERGED URGE

Today's hand is like yesterday's in its theme about the 10 and nine of trumps.

We hold no brief for anyone's bids but the final contract of six spades is not unreasonable and we can't blame North for gambling on the slam rather than taking the sure but small profit from doubling six diamonds.

This time if West opens the nine of trumps it isn't likely to do him any good. Everyone expects irregular leads against slam contracts and if South just plays low from dummy he will have no trouble making seven.

Therefore West makes his normal lead of the six of diamonds. East wins the trick and returns a heart.

South wins in dummy; leads the three of trumps and plays his queen after East follows with the deuce.

At this time it is up to West to false-card by playing either the nine or 10. If West plays the five South will have to continue by playing the ace of trumps. The king will drop and it will be curtains for the defense.

After the false card South will have a problem. Should that be a play from 10-9 doubleton or from a singleton the winning play would be to go back to dummy and lead the jack of trumps. South won't know and may guess wrong.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — "Hollywood: The Dream Factory" was an hour-long requiem for a by-gone era of magic and enchantment and the kickoff of ABC's midseason "Monday Night Special" series.

Turned out by MGM, the program consisted mostly of bits from the studio's old movie features and an unimaginative script read in rather flat style by Dick Cavett. It seemed more like a device to fill time with material at hand than a meaningful documentary about big movies and adoring audiences.

Nostalgia is, of course, big these days and appreciation of old movies is something of a cult. It apparently has not occurred to documentary producers that viewers are fashioning their own retrospectives of the golden stars and hits of early Hollywood—they are visible daily on television.

A bit from "Show Boat," a 1961 musical, had its place in the program Monday night—and a week ago it was a two-hour film feature on NBC.

When the program used old newsreel clips of gatherings of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's many stars, the program picked up in interest. But from snippets of old Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland shows to Gene Kelly dancing through a deluge to "Singing in the Rain," the program resembled an assortment of promotional spots for coming attractions more than a well-conceived study of Hollywood at the end of an era. David Wolper's "Hollywood: The Golden Years," turned out several years ago with wit and

The Joys of Being An 'Outside Salesman'

By RAY DE CRANE

Fortunate, indeed, are those persons entitled to claim the status of an "outside salesman" when they file their income tax return.

They are permitted to charge off as an "adjustment to income" all of their ordinary and necessary business expenses.

This includes all automobile expense related to their business, all travel expenses in connection with their work (including air fare, railroad, steamship, rental cars and taxi fare), the cost of meals and lodging while away from home at least overnight, tips, baggage charges, and while in travel status even their laundry charges.

They may also deduct fees paid for secretarial help, telephone and telegraph charges, gifts to customers and prospects up to a yearly limit of $25, plus all ordinary and necessary entertainment expense that is not reimbursed.

All other employees with similar business expenses get the same opportunity to deduct their expenses, but not in the same advantageous spot. As an "adjustment to income" they may deduct only their transportation and travel expenses. The other expenses, including gifts to customers, entertainment, telephone, secretarial help and others, are deducted as a miscellaneous deduction, and only if they itemize their deductions.

By being permitted to deduct their total business-related expenses as "adjustments to income" the outside salesman still has the choice of itemizing his deductions or electing the standard deduction.

An outside salesman is one whose principal function is to sell away from his employer's place of business. This would include a salesman who calls upon customers in an assigned territory or a manufacturer's representative, but it does not include a new car salesman, a milk truck or bread truck driver, nor an insurance agent handling a debit account.

Two methods may be used in determining your allowable auto expenses. You may list the total cost of operating your car, including depreciation, gas and oil, repairs, insurance, car washing, purchase of tires, batteries and all accessories, the cost of the auto license, Auto Club membership and any towing charges.

From this total expense deduct that proportion of your total driving that is represented by your business driving. For example, if your records show 55 per cent of your total mileage last year represented miles driven in business, that percentage of your total car expense is deductible.

The second method permits you to take 12 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles of business driving and nine cents a mile for anything in excess of 15,000 miles.

Whichever method you use, you may additionally charge the exact amount of parking fees and turnpike tolls in connection with your business driving.

Archer Captures Title in Campbell Playoff

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "You know," Tommy Aaron mused in characteristically thoughtful, soft-spoken fashion, "it's almost impossible for George Archer to make a bogey."

Tommy was standing in the fifth fairway while Archer was flailing away in the woods in their 18-hole playoff with Dave Hill for the title in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

He was right. Archer, a 6-foot-6 former ranch hand from Gilroy, Calif., made a miracle par on the fifth, then clinched it all with a fantastic chip shot that saved par on the 17th hole and went on to a two-stroke victory in the fight for the $25,000 first prize.

Archer shot a five-under-par

66 in the playoff round while Aaron and Hill each had a 68 in the mid, sunny weather that bathed the 6,823-yard Rancho Park Golf Course and the extra-day crowd of about 4,000 who came out to see the three tour-tested veterans.

Aaron and Hill, each 34 and each a dozen or more years on the pro tour, took home $11,575 apiece from the total purse of $125,000 in the traditional opening event on the long pro tour—but it was big George all the way.

He and Hill both hit it stiff on the first hole and birdied, but George took the lead when the slim, intense Hill bogeyed the second hole, and Archer led the rest of the way.

Aaron and Hill each had a shot at him, but Aaron was betrayed by four short putts that wouldn't drop and Dave couldn't keep it all together, finishing with six birdies and three bogies. The former Masters champion, who had six birdies, pointed to two tough pars as the keys.

The fifth was one, where he hit a terrible drive, had to play his second down an adjacent fairway, then had 160 yards for a third shot. He hit it 15 feet from the pin and rolled in the putt for a par 4.

And the 17th, a long par three, was the other one. Archer held a two-stroke lead at the time, but hit his tee shot to the left, the ball trickling down a little hill some 25 yards from the pin, while Aaron put his some 8-10 feet below the cup.

Archer was faced with a very difficult chip, over a little knoll to a slanting green. He made the delicate shot brilliantly, running the ball about six feet by the hole and sinking the putt coming back.

Hanging Out the College Grid Wash

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash:

The world's largest employment agency, also known as the American Football Coaches Association convention, officially opens today.

Registration began Monday and the lobby of the Diplomat Hotel was packed with head coaches looking for assistants and assistants looking for head coaches ... and head coaching jobs.

There aren't many head jobs open, particularly among the major colleges. Officially, Stanford and Georgia Tech are in the market, but look for Stanford to elevate Mike White, offensive coordinator and line coach, to succeed John Ralston, gone to the Denver Broncos of the National Football League.

The announcement should come before too long. Like Ralston, White is a California alumnus and was a Cal aide before coming to Stanford in 1964. That's ironic, because the Cal-Stanford annual skirmish is known on the West Coast as the Big Game.

The Georgia Tech job is wide open and the AFCA convention also is.

The hottest one right now for the Tech Post is Frank Broyles, class of '47. The Arkansas coach was nowhere to be found Monday ... at least, he was nowhere to be found here.

The rumor goes one step farther and says that Broyles was off in secret session somewhere Monday with Bobby Dodd, Tech's athletic director, who has the chore of finding a coach to replace Bud Carson, who was fired Saturday.

Two other Georgia Tech grads are Pepper Rodgers of UCLA—"Two years ago I would have jumped at the job, but now"—and Texas Tech's Jim Carlen.

Another good one has Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks going to Michigan State, his alma mater, as coach and athletic director, with Duffy Daugherty out as coach. But Fairbanks says his "plans are centered around Oklahoma—and, besides, I don't think Michigan State would ever have one man do both jobs."

Almost every coach here agrees the call that gave Michigan a safety in the Rose Bowl against Stanford and a late 12-10 lead—Stanford eventually won 13-12—was one of the worst ever.

"Would you have squawked if that had cost you the game?" John Ralston was asked.

"No," was the answer. "From the bench, I couldn't see it."

The AFCA's rules committee, headed by Cactus Jack Curcio of Santa Barbara, likes things pretty much as they are and has only a few minor recommendations for the NCAA's rules committee, which has the final say.

If the coaches have their way, the biggest change would make defensive pass interference in the end zone a first down on the three-yard line rather than the one, provided the play started outside the three. If it started from inside the three, the proposed penalty would be half the distance to the goal line.

Another suggestion would make kickoffs and missed field goals that land in the end zone automatic touchbacks. The current rule applies only to punts. The key word is "land." All other recommendations are extremely minor ones.

The university division and college division coaches of the year will be honored at a banquet Thursday night. Major college nominees are Jack Musick of Cornell, Joe Paterno of Penn State, Bill Dooley of North Carolina, Bear Bryant of Alabama, Bo Schembechler of Michigan, Bob Devaney of Nebraska, Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma and Jim Sweeney of Washington State.

The college division winner will be named from among Bob Odell of Williams, Tubby Raymond of Delaware, Stokely Fulton of Hampden-Sydney, Jack Doland of McNeese State, Dan Bolsture of Eastern Michigan, Jerry Olson of North Dakota, Don Dempsey of Arkansas Tech and Tony Knap of Boise State.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The top five teams in The Associated Press high school basketball poll remained unchanged this week, but there was a major shakeup in the lower echelon of the top 10.

Little Rock Central led the voting, garnering eight of the 12 first place votes cast by a panel of sportscasters and sportswriters.

The Tigers won twice last week to up their record to 11-1. Following Central are Little Rock Parkview, Fayetteville, Subiaco and Little Rock Hall.

The second five includes Blytheville, Stephens, Hardy Highland, Desha Central and Stuttgart.

Blytheville jumped from ninth to sixth after winning twice last week. Stephens pushed its record to 19-0 and advanced one spot. Highland, Desha Central and Stuttgart were unranked a week ago.

Fort Smith Northside, North Little Rock and Jonesboro fell from the select group. Northside lost last week to Hall and North Little Rock Northeast. North Little Rock fell to El Dorado and Monticello and Jonesboro was upended by Helena.

Both Parkview and Hall won twice last week. Unbeaten Subiaco won its only game of the

President's Got Best Coaching Play Big Talk Job, Says Broyles of Football

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles said he has the "best coaching job in America" and is not interested in a possible position at Georgia Tech.

Broyles said he issued the statement Monday to dispel rumors that he was considering the position.

Bud Carson, who was hired for the head job at Georgia Tech five years ago, was fired Saturday. Before Carson took the job, Broyles was among those mentioned for the position.

"Five years ago Bobby Dodd inquired as to my availability to succeed him as head football coach at Georgia Tech," Broyles said. "I told him then that Arkansas has become my home, that I was very happy in my present position, and that I considered mine to be the best coaching job in America — I feel the same way today."

Broyles, who was in Texas recruiting, issued the statement through the Arkansas Gazette.

Jenkins Paid Most as Cub

CHICAGO (AP) — Cy Young winner Ferguson Jenkins, the Chicago Cubs' most productive pitcher in half a century, will be the highest salaried Cub player in history at an estimated $125,000 for each of the next two seasons.

Jenkins, who peaked a five-year string of 20 or more victories with a 24-13 record last season, signed Monday a two-year pact announced officially "in excess of $100,000" for each year.

Attorney Dave Schalla, a member of Ferguson Jenkins Enterprises, Ltd., said at a news conference that $125,000 was "a good guess" for the new salary of the National League's winningest pitcher last season.

Last season, Jenkins led the National League in complete games (30), innings pitched (325), and tied for most starts (39), and was No. 2 in strikeouts with 283.

Next season, Jenkins will be striving to match the record of six 20-plus-victory seasons set by Robin Roberts, 1950-55.

Gets Coveted Spot on Flip of a Coin

NEW YORK (AP) — The flip of a coin has earned Butch Beard of the Cleveland Cavaliers a place on the Eastern Conference team for the National Basketball Association's All-Star game Jan. 18 at Los Angeles.

The unusual procedure was required after Beard, rookie center Elmore Smith of Buffalo and guard Nate Archibald of Cincinnati finished in a tie for the last position on the club in balloting by the eight Eastern Conference coaches.

The coaches were repelled, and Beard and Smith still were deadlocked. To resolve the issue, NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy flipped a coin, and Beard, a second-year pro, received his first berth on the East squad.

Beard was one of six players added to the East aggregation Monday. The others were Jack Marin and Archie Clark of Baltimore, John Johnson of Cleveland, Tom Van Arsdale of Cincinnati and Bob Kauffman of Buffalo.

The eight other members of the 14-man team were chosen earlier by sportswriters and broadcasters. They were Jo Jo White, John Havlicek and Dave Cowens of Boston, Walt Frazier and Dave DeBusschere of New York, Lou Hudson of Atlanta, Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia and Wes Unseld of Baltimore.

Added to the Western Conference squad Monday were Jimmy Walker and Bob Lanier of Detroit, Connie Hawkins and Paul Silas of Phoenix, Elvin Hayes of Houston and Sidney Wicks of Portland.

Sees Super Bowl as More Than Challenge

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — To Roger Staubach, the Super Bowl means more than a challenge to prove that the Dallas Cowboys can win the big ones—his own personal stake is an imposing one.

"I must win," he said solemnly today. "I must prove myself as a passer."

The strapping 6-3, 197-pound former Heisman Trophy winner from the Naval Academy is conscious that at 29 he concedes an edge in experience to his rival in next Sunday's championship game, 26-year-old Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins.

"Griese is a more complete quarterback than I," he said during a practice break at the New Orleans Saints' workout field. "He has control of his team—I don't. That is the major difference."

Griese is a five-year veteran out of Purdue. This is the first regular season of play—virtually the rookie year—for Staubach, who spent four years in Navy service, including a year in Vietnam, before returning to civilian life and pro football in 1969.

Whereas Griese is permitted by Coach Don Shula to call almost the entire game, Staubach is merely the feeder and the architect for Dallas' plays, shuttled by messenger from the bench on every down.

"When I feel my quarterback is experienced enough, I'll let him call the plays," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Staubach is not offended so much by this lack of confidence as by the tag that has been plastered on him as "the scrambling quarterback."

"I don't like it that most people consider me primarily a runner instead of a passer," he said. "I can pass as well as anybody. My job now is to prove it."

Staubach, an all-around athlete in high school in his native Cincinnati, is a handsome, straight-backed athlete who is articulate, outspoken and still glib to military protocol. He calls almost everybody "sir."

"I'm really a sporadic runner," Staubach explained. "In some games I don't run at all. In others, I may run a great deal. It depends on the circumstances."

Broyles said he issued the statement Monday to dispel rumors that he was considering the position.

Bud Carson, who was hired for the head job at Georgia Tech five years ago, was fired Saturday.

Before Carson took the job, Broyles was among those mentioned for the position.

"Five years ago Bobby Dodd inquired as to my availability to succeed him as head football coach at Georgia Tech," Broyles said. "I told him then that Arkansas has become my home, that I was very happy in my present position, and that I considered mine to be the best coaching job in America — I feel the same way today."

Broyles, who was in Texas recruiting, issued the statement through the Arkansas Gazette.

Jenkins Paid Most as Cub

CHICAGO (AP) — Cy Young winner Ferguson Jenkins, the Chicago Cubs' most productive pitcher in half a century, will be the highest salaried Cub player in history at an estimated $125,000 for each of the next two seasons.

Jenkins, who peaked a five-year string of 20 or more victories with a 24-13 record last season, signed Monday a two-year pact announced officially "in excess of $100,000" for each year.

Attorney Dave Schalla, a member of Ferguson Jenkins Enterprises, Ltd., said at a news conference that $125,000 was "a good guess" for the new salary of the National League's winningest pitcher last season.

Last season, Jenkins led the National League in complete games (30), innings pitched (325), and tied for most starts (39), and was No. 2 in strikeouts with 283.

Next season, Jenkins will be striving to match the record of six 20-plus-victory seasons set by Robin Roberts, 1950-55.

Sees Super Bowl as More Than Challenge

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — To Roger Staubach, the Super Bowl means more than a challenge to prove that the Dallas Cowboys can win the big ones—his own personal stake is an imposing one.

"I must win," he said solemnly today. "I must prove myself as a passer."

The strapping 6-3, 197-pound former Heisman Trophy winner from the Naval Academy is conscious that at 29 he concedes an edge in experience to his rival in next Sunday's championship game, 26-year-old Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins.

"Griese is a more complete quarterback than I," he said during a practice break at the New Orleans Saints' workout field. "He has control of his team—I don't. That is the major difference."

Griese is a five-year veteran out of Purdue. This is the first regular season of play—virtually the rookie year—for Staubach, who spent four years in Navy service, including a year in Vietnam, before returning to civilian life and pro football in 1969.

Whereas Griese is permitted by Coach Don Shula to call almost the entire game, Staubach is merely the feeder and the architect for Dallas' plays, shuttled by messenger from the bench on every down.

"When I feel my quarterback is experienced enough, I'll let him call the plays," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Staubach is not offended so much by this lack of confidence as by the tag that has been plastered on him as "the scrambling quarterback."

"I don't like it that most people consider me primarily a runner instead of a passer," he said. "I can pass as well as anybody. My job now is to prove it."

Staubach, an all-around athlete in high school in his native Cincinnati, is a handsome, straight-backed athlete who is articulate, outspoken and still glib to military protocol. He calls almost everybody "sir."

"I'm really a sporadic runner," Staubach explained. "In some games I don't run at all. In others, I may run a great deal. It depends on the circumstances."

Bruins Top Cage Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
After wiping out the state of Oregon, UCLA cleaned up in the college basketball polls.

The Bruins, who trimmed both Oregon State and Oregon over the weekend, continue to ride high, wide and handsome as the nation's No. 1 team today.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters doled out 39 of 41 first-place ballots to UCLA and fattened the Bruins' point margin over runnerup Marquette.

The Bruins, who led the Warriors by 22 points last week, accumulated a 96-point margin this time—816 to 720. Marquette, which defeated No. 4 South Carolina over the weekend, got the other first-place ballots and maintained a strong grip on No. 2.

North Carolina, which wallopped Furman last week, remained No. 3 with 630 points while South Carolina stayed No. 4 with 432.

After that, the ranks don't look quite the same as last week.

Louisville moved up two spots from seventh to take over for Indiana, which plunged 12 spots to No. 17 after losing two games. Penn remained No. 6 and Long Beach State, Virginia, Ohio State and Southern California each advanced a spot to No. 7-6-9-10, respectively.

Two new teams showed up in the second ten. No. 16 Illinois and No. 18 Missouri.

The rest of the blue ribbon group includes: No. 11 Villanova; No. 12 Florida State; No. 13 Southwestern Louisiana; No. 14 Brigham Young; No. 15 Kentucky; No. 19 Hawaii and No. 20 Marshall.

The Top 20 with first place votes in parentheses, won-lost records through Sunday's games and total points on the basis of 20 for first, 18 for second, 16, 14, 12, 10, 9, 8, etc., through 15 places:

France Quits NASCAR Post

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William H. G. (Bill) France announced his retirement today as president of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) which he formed 24 years ago.

France, 62, said he will turn the reins of NASCAR, the world's largest stock car racing sanctioning body, over to his son, William C. (Billy) France. The younger France, 39, has served as vice president and chief operations officer for several years.

Bill France, who brought NASCAR from a loosely-formed organization in 1947 to a payout of more than $6 million in prize money in 1971, said he will continue as chairman of the board and as a consultant.

France said he will devote his time to his post as president of International Speedway Corp., which owns and operates super tracks in Daytona and Alabama.

Little Change in Prep Poll

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The top five teams in The Associated Press high school basketball poll remained unchanged this week, but there was a major shakeup in the lower echelon of the top 10.

Little Rock Central led the voting, garnering eight of the 12 first place votes cast by a panel of sportscasters and sportswriters.

The Tigers won twice last week to up their record to 11-1. Following Central are Little Rock Parkview, Fayetteville, Subiaco and Little Rock Hall.

The second five includes Blytheville, Stephens, Hardy Highland, Desha Central and Stuttgart.

Blytheville jumped from ninth to sixth after winning twice last week. Stephens pushed its record to 19-0 and advanced one spot. Highland, Desha Central and Stuttgart were unranked a week ago.

Fort Smith Northside, North Little Rock and Jonesboro fell from the select group. Northside lost last week to Hall and North Little Rock Northeast. North Little Rock fell to El Dorado and Monticello and Jonesboro was upended by Helena.

Both Parkview and Hall won twice last week. Unbeaten Subiaco won its only game of the

Classroom Copycat

Scene: a college classroom. The professor is delivering a lecture on philosophy. Most of his listeners are paying only intermittent attention to his pearls of wisdom.

But one alert young man is zealously taking down every word. For he has a great idea. He will gather the lectures together, publish them in book form, and then sell them to students who are less energetic than he is.

Could the professor block the young man's project if he so desired? This question arose not long ago when a professor actually did go to court against a classroom copycat. He claimed that publication of the lectures would violate his "common law copyright."

The defendant retorted that the professor had lost the copyright by uttering his words in public, thereby making them "free for all."

But the court sided with the professor and granted him an injunction. The court pointed out that he had spoken not to the general public, for general use, but to a limited group for limited use.

Other courts have agreed that a professor does not lose his common law copyright merely by delivering lectures to his students. By the same token, a minister probably retains rights in his sermons after delivering them to his congregation.

However, a copyright generally protects only the mode of expression, not the information itself. For example: A professor of medicine complained in court that a new book contained certain details about surgery that he had described in his lectures.

But it turned out that the book did not use the professor's language at all—and used his data only in combination with material taken from other sources.

The court decided that the professor had no grounds for complaint. The court said he could not, simply by stating facts out loud, gain a monopoly on those facts for himself.

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH

The concept of no-fault insurance is fairly simple. If you're injured you don't have to go to court to prove that somebody else was at fault, so you can collect from him—that is, from his insurance company. Regardless of whose fault the accident was, your insurance company takes care of your medical bills and other economic losses, in the usual case.

Under our present go-to-court-to-collect system, most accident victims bear a good share of the losses they suffer. The average injured person, according to a definitive federal study, bears 57 per cent of the cost of the injuries. The average economic loss in permanent disability cases was put at $78,000; the average collected is $12,556.

Many legal authorities, economists and insurance executives maintain that no-fault insurance is a better way to do it. (The American Insurance Association, speaking for many of the major auto underwriters, has been a pioneer supporter.) Yet the concept can't seem to make it in the state legislatures. It was either rejected, or simply buried, in 30 states last year.

The most vocal and most powerful opposition to no-fault insurance has come from the American Trial Lawyers Association. It's understandable. A study by the Federal Judicial Center of 220,000 auto injury cases in one year showed that lawyers collected in fees and expenses $700 million—almost exactly the same amount as received by the accident victims. It's a billion-dollar-a-year business for personal injury lawyers.

Massachusetts, the first no-fault state, has seen insurance premiums reduced 42.6 per cent in a year. Fine for the motorist—but it's been a year of bleak depression for lawyers specializing in auto injury lawsuits. The current president of the Trial Lawyers' Association has said he was elected on a platform of opposing no-fault, and that's what he's going to do.

State legislatures are, of course, heavily larded with members of the legal profession. No-fault insurance was defeated in California, primarily by lawyer-legislators, even though the state bar association felt called upon to go on record pro-no-fault.

We foresee a dim future for no-fault insurance at the state-legislature level. In two or three states, it's been adroitly disposed of by passing bills labeled no-fault, which in fact invite just as many lawsuits as before. One top expert has predicted these bills will actually increase insurance costs.

The alternative is a uniform, federal no-fault plan for all states, as provided for in the Magnuson-Hart bill now pending in the Senate. Again, there's powerful opposition: the considerable weight exerted by the trial lawyers' lobbying, plus an administration position that things like this ought to be left to the states to work out. (Like workmen's compensation laws, perhaps; it took 37 years to get them passed in all the states.)

There's likely to be a no-fault bill in your state legislature—again—during its next session. Will it be genuinely no-fault—or does it leave the doors as wide open as before to lawsuits and the adversary system? Find out, and let your representative know where you stand. Ask your U.S. senator for a copy of the Magnuson-Hart bill, and any relevant material he can send you. Then let your two senators know where you stand.

Or just do nothing. After all, it's your money.

Will Discloses Names of Price Violators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council says it will start disclosing the names of violators of wage-price controls, and a congressman has hinted his committee may investigate current policy unless additional action is taken to protect consumers.

Council Director Donald Rumsfeld said Monday the new disclosure policy includes the possibility that results of council investigations may be given to persons who file complaints against excessive price and wage increases.

Names of violators have been automatically withheld unless the government went to court to force compliance with wage-price guidelines. The government also continually has said consumers are not entitled to see business records that contain justification for price hikes. The council did not say whether companies will be required to disclose that information according to the new policy.

Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, meanwhile asked the Price Commission and Pay Board to detail how they have complied with congressional mandates in the new laws. The Texas Democrat said he is particularly interested in those pertaining to the handling of retroactive pay hikes and those on the rights of consumers.

In letters Monday to the chairmen of both control agencies, Patman said his panel might hold hearings to see if conditions written into the legislation extending President Nixon's economic-control powers are being met.

One provision is that previously negotiated pay raises caught in the initial 90-day wage-price freeze are to be paid if prices were increased to cover them, unless they are inconsistent with inflation fighting standards.

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson today urged federal mediators to watch out for attempts to get around wage controls.

"Both the future of collective bargaining and the controls program are ill-served by such mischief, and we should not be reticent in saying so," the secretary said in remarks for the annual seminar of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Hodgson also told the mediators, who sit in when requested on difficult labor-management bargaining sessions to help toward a settlement, that they should discourage management bargainers from agreeing to a big wage increase because they think the board will reject it.

"There is the case, and I know this has happened, when one of the parties says, 'Let's not knock ourselves out. The settlement may be a bad one, but let's agree to it anyway and then let the Pay Board knock it down,'" Hodgson said.

Meanwhile, the Price Commission told insurance companies they must reduce by 37.5 per cent the portion of any new rate hike. Previous requirements permitted any size increase if it was based on the rate of inflation.

Horatio Man Tosses Hat for Governor

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Rep. George W. Davis of Horatio borrowed some stationery from the Grady Manning Hotel and at 5:30 Monday morning wrote in longhand the press release making the announcement he says he had been thinking about for three years.

He is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Davis' disclosure to a news conference he conducted in the House chamber at the Capitol later in the day surprised a lot of people, including his legislative colleagues and, he says, his wife. His brother-in-law telephoned Mrs. Davis and told her of her husband's plans about an hour before the announcement, the representative said.

"She just about fainted," he said.

He had not warned her in advance, he said, "because I was afraid she would try to talk me out of it." But he said he thinks she will accept the idea.

In becoming the first announced candidate for governor—he cannot pay the $1,500 filing fee until the period set by statute from April 4 to April 18—the 54-year-old Davis said he thought Arkansans deserved better leadership than they've gotten from former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller and Gov. Dale Bumpers in the last five years. He described Bumpers as a weak, indecisive governor.

"I thought he was a friend of ours," was the reaction of Archie Schaffer III, an aide to Bumpers.

"Friendship works both ways in Sevier County," Davis said in an interview. "When I help people, I would like for them to help me."

Serving his fifth term from Sevier County, Davis supported key pieces of Bumpers' 1971 legislative program, including all of the $28 million tax package and governmental reorganization.

How had Bumpers not helped him?

Davis said he was "gerrymandered" by the state Board of Apportionment of which the governor is chairman into a single-member legislative district with Rep. Charles O. Wade of Texarkana. Most of the votes in the district are in Texarkana.

In addition, Davis said, a vocational-technical school that was supposed to have been located at De Queen in his district was authorized for some other place.

Davis said that although he supported Bumpers' tax program, he now feels "we are taxing the poor people in too many ways and the rich people have too many loopholes." He said he voted for the taxes to give the school teachers more money.

He said he supports a progressive income tax but opposes the sales tax. He thinks there will be a drive to increase the sales tax and he is opposed to it.

The representative described himself as a fiscal conservative and a liberal on social issues. He is not opposed to desegregation, but he objects to school busing, he said.

Asked what one of his chief attributes was, Davis spelled: "G-U-T-S."

Bumpers, who has not announced his political plans, will not be unbeatable if he runs for re-election, Davis said.

"I think I've contacted enough common people that I think I know the feeling of the people," he said. "If I didn't think so, I wouldn't have come up here and obligated myself for $1,500 (the filing fee)."

The son of a lumber company mule Skinner, Davis was born in the Polk County community of Eagleton, but spent most of his early years in nearby Hatfield. On graduation from high school, he went to work at a sawmill for 24 cents an hour for 10 hours a day, seven days a week, Davis said.

He said he accumulated $500 and started studies at the University of Arkansas in the fall of 1936. He earned a bachelor's degree in 1940, moved to Horatio and got a job as a vocational agricultural instructor. He held the position 32 years, until Saturday, when he resigned.

Davis also obtained his veterinarian's license in 1945 and has maintained his practice while teaching school.

Mrs. Onassis to Testify

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis goes to the U.S. attorney's office today to give private pretrial testimony in the suit and countersuit growing out of her dispute with freelance photographer Ronald Galella.

U.S. District Court Judge Irving Ben Cooper ordered Monday that the press be barred from today's procedure on grounds that pretrial depositions cover many matters that do not become part of the eventual trial record.

Galella, who has made a career of photographing the former first lady and her children, Caroline and John Kennedy, sued Mrs. Onassis for $1.3 million charging harassment and interference with his work.

Mrs. Onassis filed a $1.5 million countersuit charging that Galella's picture-taking activities have frightened, embarrassed and threatened the mental well-being and physical safety of her children.

Millionaire Oilman Dies

CANNES, France (AP) — Nubar Gulbenkian, the flamboyant oil millionaire, died Monday night at a Cannes hospital. He was 75.

Gulbenkian, son of the legendary independent oil operator Calouste Gulbenkian, was one of British society's more colorful figures. A tireless socialite and party giver, a gourmet and a man of extravagant habits, he was rarely seen without an orchid in his buttonhole.

The cause of death was not announced, but he had suffered from a heart ailment for several years and had been hospitalized several times in recent months.

Gulbenkian was born in Kadi Keui, an Armenian town under Turkish domination, on June 2, 1896. The family fled to England to escape the Turkish massacres, and Nubar was educated at Harrow. While his miserly father piled up a vast fortune in oil investments, he employed his son without salary and gave him only occasional sums for pocket money. But Nubar invested in oil himself and made a large fortune of his own.

A gregarious extrovert, Nubar was the complete opposite of his father. He had orchids for his buttonhole shipped wherever he travelled in the world, imported a troupe of belly dancers from Turkey for one party in London, rode in a yellow and black Rolls-Royce built like a taxi so it could make U-turns easily and took a $150 picnic lunch from a Mayfair restaurant when he had to attend a case at London's High Court.

Gulbenkian married three times but had no children.

most important advice I can give you, though, is to be certain that your daughter is under the care of someone actively treating arthritis and who is a specialist in that problem. Then stay with your doctor and don't chase after miracle cures. Your daughter may need help most of her life to avoid deformities and crippling. I know that is harsh and I hate to say it, but you must realize that continued unrelenting medical supervision by a competent doctor is your best chance to provide a happy future for your daughter.
